Sixty Longshoremen
Are On Strike

to live in," said one special agent of the company today. That they may get this class of accommodation before the strike of the longshoremen is broken seems probable from the attitude of J. Howard Gardner, vice president of the steamship company, who upon arriving in this city today immediately ordered bunk cars renovated for their use and personally supervised the work.

That the company will not recede from its stand in denying the longshoremen an increase of 10 cents an hour demanded in addition to the 25 cent rate that has heretofore been paid, seems certain from the reply of Vice President Gardner to an inquiry this morning: "The New England Steamship Co. is not wealthy enough to pay 10 cents an hour increase to all its employees over the standard wage, which is in reality the substance of the demand now made."

Other company employees in direct touch with the situation said that strikebreakers would be paid three times as much as was asked by the strikers rather than to give in to the demands.

The crisis arose at about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the Naugatuck docked. Sixty-five longshoremen appeared before Timothy P. Singleton, day foreman of the steamship company, and made peremptory demands. These were refused upon telegraphic advice of Nestor E. Wedge, assistant freight agent of the company, at present absent from the city on a vacation, and other high officials of the company ordered similar action sending all the available negro longshoremen that could be picked up in New York, on the City of Brockton, which arrived later.

None of the freight handlers, clerks or other organized bodies of labor quit work. Some interference upon the part of the strikers caused hurry calls for the police. Captain John Regan with Sergeant Ramsey hurried to the scene, calling reinforcements from all adjoining beats. Aiding the special police of the railroad the threatening longshoremen were forced from the company's property and dispersed on the streets.

Work of unloading and loading the Naugatuck progressed slowly. The City of Brockton brought nearly a hundred negro strikebreakers who were put to work. Their unfamiliarity with the job caused confusion and the big steamer was compelled to leave at 6 o'clock this morning only partly unloaded.

Tired and hungry, the men feared to leave the freight yards. They were shown bundles of straw and empty freight cars. Many of them refused to sleep in them or to work again and demanded their pay and transportation to New York. The pay is said to have been given them under orders of J. H. Cosgriff, freight agent of the New Haven road, who during the night had assisted in the dock work. They were told they had come here under contract to work and if they did not wish to do so they could walk back to New York.

Orders for reinforcements of strike breakers were immediately sent to New York and six policemen were called to the yards at sailing hour of the City of Brockton to prevent the discharged negroes from forcing passage on the boat. A number of strikebreakers arrived from New Haven at 1 o'clock this afternoon, others being expected from New York tonight. Officials say that service will now progress without interruption to shippers and consignees. With the dissatisfied negroes joining forces with the striking longshoremen, trouble is feared by the police who are strongly posted throughout the Water street district today. A score of special agents from all sections of the railroad in New England are guarding the company's property in the yards. In the yards all appeared serene this morning. In big box cars the strikebreakers were picturesquely sprawled on straw pallets they had made for themselves while others were engaged in beating mattresses taken from the bunk car brought to this city. The company denied that any of the strikebreakers would be housed in the yard barracks, which is devoted exclusively to New Haven railroad freight handlers and already overcrowded.

5 Years Ago---Now --And 5 Years Hence At Beautiful Lordship

5 Years Ago We announced the opening sale of lots at Lordship Manor and from that announcement dates the development of this historic tract; from the wilderness of the country to the life and atmosphere of a democratic watering place; from the candle of former generations to the oil lamp and now Gas Light (soon Electricity); from the back yard well to the city water; from country lanes to wide boulevards and beautiful parked streets; from a millionaire's Summer Colony to a democratic, congenial year-round Residential Suburb.

And Five Years from Now many of you, who read this announcement and fail to act will look back with regret on your neglected opportunity. Long before that time the last lot will have been sold—long before that time Lordship Lots will have doubled in value and its hundred homes will have increased to thousands—and so on.

Lots in Section 5 Are Going Fast

This section comprises a parcel of the finest lots on the entire property—Many desirable plots are still available but it behooves you to come over to-morrow or Sunday and see for yourself—Just why you should buy and build at Lordship.
